

Go2Call Wins INTERNET TELEPHONY® Magazine's VoIP Service Provider Award

Go2Call's Contributions to the VoIP Industry are Recognized by TMC's INTERNET TELEPHONY Magazine

Evanston, IL - November 1, 2004 - Go2Call.com, Inc., a leading global provider of hosted VoIP solutions, announced today that the company won TMC®'s INTERNET TELEPHONY® magazine VoIP Service Provider Award. INTERNET TELEPHONY announced the award recipients at the INTERNET TELEPHONY Conference and EXPO Fall 2004. The Los Angeles event is the largest VoIP tradeshow in the world. INTERNET TELEPHONY presents this award to companies that drive the VoIP industry forward.

"It is an honor to be presented this award by INTERNET TELEPHONY magazine. As the longest-running VoIP publication, INTERNET TELEPHONY magazine holds authority and prestige in the VoIP Industry. We can view this recognition of Go2Call as an exhibition of our success in the execution of our company's mission of consistently delivering innovative and high quality VoIP solutions to our customers," said Larry Spear, Go2Call Co-Founder and INTERNET TELEPHONY conference attendee.

TMC's INTERNET TELEPHONY developed the awards to reward companies like Go2Call for excellence and foresight within the VoIP industry. "We felt that not enough was being done to recognize the companies building the networks and providing the services to drive this industry forward. This award illustrates INTERNET TELEPHONY Magazine's decision to honor those service providers who have played a leading role by acting early in the evolution to IP," said Rich Tehrani TMC's president and INTERNET TELEPHONY'S Group Editor-In-Chief.

Greg Galitzine, editorial Director of INTERNET TELEPHONY, believes that these awards will serve an important function in the history of the industry. "I feel that this award will serve as a bookmark in communications history, chronicling the introduction and evolution of VoIP service providers to the world," said Galitzine.
